The time for toil has past, and night has come, The last and saddest of the harvest eves; Worn out with labor long and wearisome, Prooping and faint the respers harten home, Each laden with his sheaves.

BRINGING OUR SHEAVES WITH US.

Last of the laborers, Thy feet I gain, Lord of the Harrest! and my spirit grieves That I am burdened, not so much with grain, As with a beaviness of heart and brain . Master, behold my sheaves!

Pew, light and worthless, yet their trifling weigh Through all my frame a weary aching leaves For long I struggled with my hapless fate, And stayed and toiled till it was dark and late Yet these are all my sheaves.

Full well I know I have more tares than wheat Brambles and flowers, dry stalks and withered leaves, Wherefore I blush and weep, as at Thy feet I kneel down reverently and repeat, "Master behold my sheaves!"

I know these blossoms, clustering heavily, With evening dew upon their folded leaves, Can claim no value or utility. Therefore shall fragrancy and beauty be The glory of my sheaves.

So do I gather strength and hope anew: Fall well I know Thy patient love perceive Not what I did, but what I strive to do-And though the full, ripe ears he sadly few. Thou wilt accept my sheaver!

Extract from a Speech Delivered by Huo George H. Pendleten at Clifton, Ohio, September 10th, 1669.

I cannot agree with Governor Hayes, that all the vexed questions of our National politics are wisely and happily settled-that "the great questions of liberty, and union, and reconstruction of the Unnion, have been made safe." I cannot agree that refrench ment, economy, and honesty have been in-troduced into the management of the Federal restored when Virginia, and Texas are under military Government, and Georgia is without representation in Congress. I cannot say know that the Supreme Court is only waiting an opportunity to declare the reconstruction

I cannot say the harmony of our Federal system is maintained when Federl power is ought to bear, with all its force of law and of arms, to compel the State to change their Rederal Government $430,000,000 are annually drawn from the sign you to a lunatic asylum. products of active labor, and nothing from dead capital.

I cannot say that taxation is equal when honds are exempted and labor is crushed be-neath its exactions. I cannot say that economy and honesty mark the collection and disbursement of the revenue, when the Secretary of the Treasury pays $120 for a bond which he may redeem for $100, and when the Commissioner of Internal Revenue wishes, above all things, that he may send a Supervisor to the Penitentiary.

I cannot say that all is prosperous, when agricultural products are so low, and employment so scarce, and wages so reduced, and interest on money so high, and good, honest, honorable men in every branch of commercial and mercantile industry are on the very verge of hopeless bankruptcy. And because I cannot say all these things, I cannot turn from them with such entire complacency to consider whether the last Legislarure sal few days too long, or did right to create the or to allow counties and cities and towns to

If it be true that the session of this Legis-lature cost more tham the last, if was because the last Republican Legislature increased the per diem of the members. And if the Legisare unwisely created some officers which the Governor recommended, it is also true that they refused to pass an expensive and odious registry law, which he twice urged upon their favorable attention.

The scheme of reconstruction of this administration, its action toward Virginia, its of American citizens who have been impris oned or murdered in Ireland or Cuba, its utter shamelessness in selling high offices, its utter want of appreciation of its grave duties and ties, all these are tempting subjects of discussion, but I refrain as this

I will discuss Federal politics so far only as they affect the people of our own State.

FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT. I oppose the adoption of the Fifteenth Constitutional Amendment, because it is a material radical change in our system of government; because it destroys the relation of the States to the Federal Union, which the Constitution established, and degrades them because it takes away from the States with out their consent that essential attribute of a self governing community—the right to de-termine who shall exercise the right of suffrage.

I object to its adoption, because it was in tended to, and it will introduce negro suffrage in Ohio against the will of her people. Two years ago, the people of Ohio, without disrefused to amend the State Constitution. They did this after full argument—after full consideration of negro suffrage. I see no reason to believe they have changed their opinion. Yet now the attempt is to be made to force them to submit to the system which they so emphatically and deliberately rejected. The Convention which nominated General Grant declared as part of its creed: "The question of suffrage in all the loyal States properly belongs to the people of the And yet in one short year the test of loyalty and patriotism, by this same party, is to deny to the States the regulation of the

I object to its adoption, because by the strongest implication it confers upon Congress, and, reserves to the States the right to

I said the expenditures were unnecessary and wasteful, and that they were all in the interest of dead, inactive capital. The last reports of the Secretary shows that he is expenditures; I cannot agree that the debt has been decreased and is decreasing, as he states it. I cannot agree that the burdens of taxation have been reduced, and their weight upon the people has been lightened. I cannot agree that sound judgment and freedom from bad influences, have been brought to the exercise of the immense power of the Secretary of the Treasury. I cannot agree that business is active; that enterprise is active; that vigor and energy and industry are bo untifully rewarded; that employment is abundant; that daily toil is fairly comis abundant; that daily toil is fairly com-pensated; that commerce on the ocean and on the land is prosperous—and, therefore, I nor, turn my face from all questions of Federal politics, and look only at State affairs.

He says the debt, on the 1st of March was $2,526,000.000, and the 1st of August was $2,481,000,000. Why, gentlemen, every other Secretary thought the Pacific Railroad bonds were a part of the public debt. Chase and McCal och always included them. They amount to $64,000,000. Add these to the $2,481,000,000. and the total appears to be $2,545,000,000, or $20,000.000 more than in March. won't lie" may be a very true saying : but convey to us common people, who are not ecretaries, but only tax-payers, a very false If the public debt statement vere made on August I, it would show, acrding to Mr. Chase's rule of statem $2,662,000,000—according to Mr. McCulloch's plan, $2,535,000,000, instead of $2,481,000,000 according to Mr. Boutwell's

But, even according to his plan, the statement shows an increase of more than eleven millions of dollars of bonds which bear interest in coin. And as if these causes combined were not enough to palsy trade and produce that stag-nation which we call "hard times," the Secretary has continued the contraction of the currency. On the 1st of September, 1865, the irrency, consisting of bank notes and legal ender notes, amounted to $961,625,000. he 1st of September, 1868, it amounted to $671,455,000, a contraction of $290,000,000 in three years. If the reports published in the newspapers are correct, the currency on the 1st of September, 1869, consisting of the same two items, amounted to $655,820,000, a still further reduction of $16,000,000. But the ecretary boasts that he has reduced the three er cent. certificates nearly $12,000,000, and the compound interest notes more than $10. 600,000. These were used as the reserves of the banks. If they have been thus reduced, their places are supplied with legal tender and these amounts must be added to the $16,000,000, and thus we have a contracion this year of $38,000,000. Why, gentlemen, after the close of the war n 1815, the country banks of Great Britain contracted their issues seven million pounds, and the joy produced by the peace was turned into agony by the prospect of universal bank-

EFFECTS OF CONTRACTION.

Have you considered what contraction rings with it? It brings universal fall of prices of goods and labor, while debts, taxes, and moneyed obligations remain fixed. The man who has money becomes much richer, because his money will pay for more land, more wheat, more labor. But the man who owes money becomes much poorer, because he must sell more land, more wheat, and perorm more labor to pay his debt. It breaks down all business, because if prices decline, the more business a man does the greater hi losses. It produces unsteadiness and panic, and gives rise only to illegitimate gambling

And yet in the presence of these truths-in the presence of this immense taxation, and of the crushing public debt-the administration continues to contract the currency This system enhances the value of the bonds -it enhances the value of the gold interestenhances the value of money, but it re-

The Terrors of Womanhood.

[From the London Times.] A female poacher is not one who lays runong nooses for hares and rabbits, or who mocking over a pheasant or so, but one who trespasses on the erotic preserves of her sis ers, and who likes nothing so well as to in-ade the rights which the formal assignment a man by betrothal or marriage has b stowed on another woman. In a society like urs, where women are so greatly in excess of men, poachers necessarily abound; and we can not enter a drawing room where we not find them plying their vocation, making pleasant sport enough for the hus bands. if but meager entertainment for the wives. But a poacher who knows her business, and prefers a snug and safe corner to triumphal eclat, but also more danger, is and, above all, she is careful not to offend the On the contrary, a poacher of the wary the eleverest method of laying foundations is always ready to devote herself to her when he husband is absent or engaged. Of course she has a stupid time of it; but then there are arid tracts everywhere, and making the bricks we hear of large payments on account of the public debt, and Governor Hayes congratuis wise if not amusing; for by it she hood-winks both society and the wife for a time, and under cover of a masked battery makes so much the better practice. It is only by slow degrees that the wife finds out the real meaning of the poacher's demonstrative affection; only after a progressive series of experiences that she is entitled to "serpent!" in her ear as she shrinks from the kiss which, making believe to come from a friend, is in reality the kiss of a betrayer

The poacher is frequently a young lady of artless manners and gushing tendencies; strict in theoretical morals when she can be brought to book, but notorious for a certain vagueness, which can neither foresee conse quences nor calculate effects. Intending no vil, to she says-and we are bound to take her at her word—she does, undoubtedly, allow herself very considerable latitude; and her manners to men, though pretty and undeniably taking, would be risky even Arcadia, where all men are pure and all women innocent. But for sinful, passionate England, where our very chits know more than is good for them, and our full-blown dowagers have ferreted out every secret of vice, they are even more than risky. So soon as her friend is eugaged or married she takes up quite a sisterly tone toward the preserve suming that his state makes him something quite different from the ordinary man, and that henceforth he is safe and she may be free. She gets into the way of calling him "dear" and "old," as the still more distinct assumption of sisterliness; and she generally kisses him when she sees him. As she kisse brother, she says, if this unusual, though pleasant habit of hers is objected to by the more conventional of her friends, whom she calls ill-natured and suspicious. Besides, is not the wife standing by while this interesting ittle ceremony is about? And what harm can there be in it if she sees it, and does not object? All very well; but the wife is not always standing by, and the chances are-human nature being but a ricketty concern at the hest-that the ceremony which is so innocent in her presence acquires a somewhat different tone and flavor in This, of course, the poacher will not admit-indeed, passionately denies; but then poach ers never do confess their trade, and their snares and traps are for anything but unlaw-

If the peacher is of a defiant nature, and fond of showing her power, she does not care to make friends with the wife; and then it is open war, and not a masked battery, with certain discomfiture to one or the other in the future. It is such an exquisite delight to ome women to make men regret on their acount-to make them mourn over the infatu tion which impelled them to act so rashly, so prematurely. If only they had waited! if only they had foreseen the possibilities lying or them in that quiet country house-which the way, they never would have seen at all but for the very accident of their marriage. But they always forgot this point, and pick out the circumstances they desire, without taking into consideration the fact which led them, and which they do not desire hen a woman of this kind receives the unconfortable confessions of a husband just beginning to be dissatisfied with his choice; when he tells her with a deprecating sigh-kindness warring with his discontent, and the sas, in March, 1858, Mr. Bell opposed the Leremembrance of his old dreams tempering compton constitution.

The New York Tribune is authorized by Mr. BOUTWELL to say that there is no truth in tempted to escape, when the officer shot him he was never farther from being actuated by the statement that any personal difference through the hips, dangerously, and probably a corrupt motive than when he was fully ever existed between himself and the late identified with men upon whom he turned Secretary of War in reference to the recogni-On 6th inst. the laying of the track on the his back after the judicial election in 1866. tion of Cuba or upon any other subject. ### The London Spectator has heretofore been one of Gen. Grant's best friends in England, preising him upon all occasions. But it now changes its tune, and speaks thus of him in York paper: "The gradual decline of President Grant in American opinion is noteworthy, for there is little evidence of any strong political reason. He is very lenient to Conservatives, but that may be wise; and indiscreet letters, but the letters are sound enough in principle. Nevertheless, it is certain that, for some reason not quite perceptible over here, a tone of contempt towards the ties.

SCIENCE ADVANCES .- As soon as an article purporting to be of utility has been tested, and its merits endorsed by public opinion, unprincipled parties endeavor to replenish their depleted purse by counterfeiting, and substituting a spurious for the genuine article. Some time since, mercury in the disguise of pills, powders, &c., was given for all diseases of the stomach and liver, while quinine was freely administered for the chills. At length HOS. TETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS made its ad vent, and an entire new system of healing was inaugurated. The beneficial effects of this valuable preparation were at once acknowledged, and min eral poisons suffered to sink into obscurity to which have been many spurious Bitters palmed upon the community, which, after trial, have been found perfectly worthless, while HOSTE FTER'S has proved a blessing to thousands, who owe to it their restoration to health and happiness. For many years we have watched the steady p gress of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

On the night of the 3d instant a fearful aceident occurred in Christian county, Mo., about three miles west of Ozark, which has njured two more. The wife of Mr. A. J. Clark undertook to fill a coal oil lamp with oil. She took out the burner and handed it lamp and also the can ignited and exploded, setting fire to the clothing of Mrs. Clark and group around her while the lamp was being filled. The two youngest, ten and twelve years of age, have died from the effects, and Mrs. Clark and her oldest daughter are badly

STOLEN HORSES .- An unknown man arrivand proposed to sell the horses at a reduced price. His appearance was suspicious and his conduct anything but "all right." the following Sunday morning he went to the residence of George Ham, on Triplett creek in Rowan county, and took lodgings for the While there he heard of a party search of stolen horses, and after night he complained of being sick and went out the house to which he did not return. It thought that he believed the party in search of stolen horses were in pursuit of him which induced him to abandon the horses, which he left at Mr. Ham's. The horses were undoubt edly stolen. A description of them will b found in our advertising columns. Mr. Ham brought the horses to this place and deposit ed them with Messrs. Taylor and Fleming, where they may be seen .- Flemingsburg

RAPE.-A warrant for attempted rape on the person of Elizabeth Delaney, a white wo man, was issued by Esq. Robertson of the Centreville district against the person of Charles Blair, of color, on last Friday, the 10th inst. Thenegro was arrested in Robertson county and brought to Centreville and had an examining trial before Esqs. Robert son and Barton, and was held for trial at the next term of the Circuit Court and was accor dingly committed to jail at this place on the 11th inst. We have heard very little in regard to the case, but various rumors are affoat concerning the character of the parties which we do not choose to publish. At any rate the negro has committed a heinous crime and one that deserves the severest pen-alty of law—and if guilty should hang. We understand that the testimony is strong against the boy—and that it is proven that he did commit the rape of which he is charged .-

Byron Article-A Very Interesting

To the Editor of the London Times Sir :- As the solicitors of the descendants and representatives of the late Lady Noel Byron, for whose family we have acted for upwards of half a century, we request your permission to publish in the columns of the an article which has just appeared in the

H. B. Stowe is announced to be the writer

tice if it had appeared in a less respectable journal than Macmillan, or if even in this periodical the authoress had been allowed to tell her story without editorial preface or comment. The editor of Macmillan, however, has not only admitted Mrs. Stowe's article but he has prefixed to it a note in which he authoritatively proclaims to the world that "the paper on Lady Byron's life and relations to Lord Byron is the complete and authentic statement of the whole circumstances of that disastrous affair." Nay, more, "that the paper is, in fact, Lady Byron's own statement of the reasons which forced her to the sepaation which she so long resisted." Again, he editor states "the contribution of Mrs. stowe supplies evidence at once new and Stowe supplies evidence at once new and direct" on Lady Byron's history.

We, as the family solicitors, beg most distinctly to state that the article is not a complete or authentic statement of the facts conected with the separation, that it cannot be egarded as Lady Byron's own statement, and Iowa..... that it does not involve any direct evidence on Lady Byron's history. Instead of direct evidence, Mrs. Stowe has

Without for a moment conceding that Mrs. stowe's narrative contains a complete acand, we must protest against it as being prolessedly, first, a most gross breach of the trust nd confidence stated to have been reposed n her: as inconsistent with her own recomignorant violation (at least we shall, in char-ity, suppose Mrs. Stowe to be ignorant) of the xpress terms of Lady Byron's last will and and testament, executed a few days only before her decease, bequeath to three persons, as trustees, to be by them first sealed up, afterwards deposited in a bank in the names of uch trustees, and she directed that no one else, however nearly connected with her, should be allowed to inspect such docu-ments, which the trustees were allowed to make use of as they might judge to be best or the interests of her grandchildren. Mrs. towe is not one of these three. Her paper is entirely gratuitous and unauthorized. It is, as we have said, not consistent with her own counsel; it is an offense against Lady Byron's dying wishes, and the authoress has written in utter disregard of the feelings of those grandchildren of whom she speaks in a vague, fulsome way, as "some of the best and oblest of mankind. The appearance of the volumes about Lord Byron by the Countess Guiccioli is alleged by Stowe as the main reason which induce descendants, her personal and trusted friends in this country, suffer the slanders of the Countess Guiccioli to pass uncontradicted; —for, to use Mrs. Stowe's own expression, of what value was the outcry of "the mistress against the wife?-their silence should surely have led Mrs. Stowe to hesitate before giving to the world a statement which, howdead, must inevitably inflict much pain on Byron's own statement is in the ossession of those who love her memory too rell to make a rash use of it, and if the world s ever to learn the true story of Lady Byron's fe it will learn it from them.

It would have been in better taste if Mrs. towe and the editor of Macmillan's Magazine had imitated the "religious silence" which the latter so much commends in the case of Lady Byron. Meanwhile, Lady Byron's descendnts and representatives entirely and abso disclaim all countenance of Stowe's article, which has been published without their privity or consent.

A serious difficulty occurred near Wilson's ausing considerable excitement and riotous onduct on the part of the negro population. Mr. Charles McDade, Jr., was attacked by a negro, and in defending himself, cut the negro severely with a pen-knife, from the effects of which he died the same night. A mob of negroes immediately assembled at McDade's swearing he should not leave the house alive. In the meantime a few friends, who had assembled to protect McDade, and the Sheriff who came to arrest him, are prisoners in the hands of the pioters. Troops were sent on

SOW WREAT. There is some danger that, owing to the very low price of wheat this fall, many of the farmers will sow less than usual. We think such a course would be unwise. In very many cases it would be good policy for farmers to sow less ground, but to do so for the purpose of raising more wheat and at less cost per bushel. Thirty acres, thoroughly prepared and sown with a drill, will produce quite as much, and probably more, wheat than fifty acres cutivated as very much of the wheat ground is tilled in this

But to neglect to sow wheat this fall because it does not bring as much now as it did a year ago, would be acting more unwisely than those farmers did last year who killed off their sheep because wool was low. think that on a soil moderately well adapted to it, wheat can be raised, at present prices, about as profitably as other farm crops. But unlike potatoes and fruits, that may be more profitable sometime, it can be easily kept for any length of time, so that if present prices of wheat are very low it may be safely stored until they come up, which will be in less than twelve months, if a large portion of the farmers should yield to the present temptation, and discard this crop altogether.

Wheat is an article in the present prices are actively as a profit of the present temptation.

There are already reports of short crops both in England and France this year, and some time since we noticed the fact that orders were sent from Ruceia to France for wheat, and it has been clearly shown that for the last three years there has been a great falling off of the export of wheat from Russia to England, so that the latter now more than ever depends on this country for wheat and flour. This fact should stimulate the farmers to raise all the wheat they can, at least to give this crop a fair portion of attention: they will not regard it.

Decorporate in layor of wheat raising is,

One argument in layor of wheat raising to, that the labor attending it interferes so little across. It is one-third as large as the State of Rhode Island. There are other men who with other farm work. Seeding comes in a comparatively leisure time, and the harvest commonly comes in between corn plowing and haying, so that this crop is, in a sense, clear gain.

We predict that wheat will advance somewhat, rather than decline, within the ext twelve months; therefore we say sow

TO WHEAT GROWERS. The Editor of the Union and American :-We ask of you the privilege of calling the attention of farmers in Tennessee to one impor-

We have no recollection of there ever appearing, at any former period, so much smut worthless so far as being ground into flour was concerned, and the planter was compelled to take whatever price he could get for his wheat. The loss, to our certain knowledge, to the farmers of Middle Tennessee this year sponsible alone for their losses; for the rem edy is plain and simple, if they but had the industry to apply it. The one remedy that we would call your attention to, as being prominent among others, is blue-stone. We have seen during the past few years too many fair, square tests of this to doubt for one moment but that soaking seed wheat thoroughly in blue-stone water will prevent rust. And we ask to know, when has there ever occurred an instance in which blue-stone failed to accomplish all we claim for it? We have no besitation in saying that in any failure of the ter. and failing to give the wheat sufficient time to coak thoroughly in the solution. on his part in the future. A little of wise forethought in the proper time, would, in our opinioa, pay the farmer very handsomely at the next harvest: for if the farmer expects to get a full market price for his crop of wheat he must first put his seed wheat in order. In conclusion we would say to the farmers that they must give more attention to cleansing thoroughly their wheat before sowing, or else, in the future as in the past, fail to get the full market value for their wheat when sold.

JAS. WHELES & Co. T. S. Clough states in the Prairie Farmer that he once brined and thus thoroughly cleansed seed wheat for thirty acres. He took the small and inferior grain thus abstructed and washed again. From this he nowed a very few bushels, the result from which was inferior wheat in both quantity and quality; all the remainder was fine, free from oats and smut, and produced a large yield. He then came to the conclusion that "As ye sow, so shall ye reap;" and if any-body persists in sowing smut and dirt, instead

DRILLING WHEAT.

The season approaching for seeding down to wheat, we would urge the benefit of drill ing in the seed with a machine, instead of broadcast sowing. Nothing in agricultural practice, now-a-days, may be said to be better established than this, as every one knows wives and daughters and sis who has tried it; and the reports last season in every species of license. in the Department at Washington, from all sections of the country, showed the gain in bushels per acre to be in some sections 20 especially—that a certain dash and freedom and 25 per cent. with the drilled wheat. The ridges left by the drill are leveled down by the frosts of winter, roots of the grain and grass.-Practical

RECLAIMING MEADOWS.

The most profitable labor a farmer can engage in after the having season is over, is to plow and drain low or meadow lands, manure in the grass crop the succeeding season. For several years we have been engaged in this work, and have found no kind of labor apon and before the month was out it was drained, pulverized, seeded, and made as mellow and level as a prairie. This year, in July, we cut the heaviest swath of timothy on that meedow of any upon the farm. The first crop paid all the expenses of reclaiming. Farmers, year neglected lowlands are the best eart of your farms do not allow them. best part of your farms, do not allow them to remain the home of tadpoles and bull-frogs, with proper care, they will fill your barns with the rich grasses of the uplands.—

Messrs. Earl and Fowler give their personal supervision to the farm, beside attending to their separate interests, the former a jobbing merchant and the latter a banker. With the late improvements of farm machinery and harvesting implements, they are enabled to keep the model farm in good condition, and from present appearances the balance sheet will be on the right side, as heretofore.

THE LARGEST ENRLISH FARM. The largest farm in England consists of three thousand acres, and belongs to a man with the Yankee name of Samuel Jones. In its cultivation he follows the "four course" system, the whole extent of the farm being divided-into four great crops—750 acres of wheat, 550 to barley and oats, 750 to eacds, beans, peas, &c., and 750 to roots. His live stock is valued as follows: Sheep, $35,000 horses. $15,000; bullocks, $12,000; pigs, $2, The oil cake and corn purchased an nually amounts to $20,000, and artificial fertilizers about $8,000. The entire cost of manure, in various forms used, annually costs about $15,000. Sheep are claimed as the most profitable stock he keeps, from which are realized about $20,000 a year. His income from the whole farm, though not stated, can be little less than $50,000 per annum. KEEPING SWEET POTATOES.

Eds. Co. Gent .- I have seen several plans for keeping sweet potatoes tried, such as putting them up in dry sand, chaff, &c.; but Wheat is an article in constant and in the creasing demand. The consumption of flour is increasing in England every year, and so very large portion of the flour used there is imported—some from continental Europe and some from this country. If the cream the same in the rope, as is quite oftending sase, prices here need have no fear but that your potatoes will

There has not been a day since new wheat began to come into this market, but many splendid crops have been offered that were utterly ing, by appearing with neck, shoulders and arms chastely veiled in delicate lace or muslin, instead of exposing them to the promiscuous gaze of the public assembly.

We hoard away the jewel that we prize the has been truly enormous, arising out of the most, we draw a curtain before the picture facts just stated. But the farmers are rethat we dote upon; hide our most sacred feelings in our hearts; we veil the shrine of the temple; we hedge the lily about lest its whiteness should be soiled; we want to cover up from other eyes the things that are the fairest, the dearest and most sacred to us. Oh, woman! the most sacred thing, the fairest and dearest that man has in the world, is yourself. And I hold that a man's instinckind, the fault was traceable directly to the farmer in nos using the blue stone enough, the lover and the husband, when his nature is As the time unperverted, the arms that caress and enfold for sowing wheat again will soon be here, let him, the bosom which is the dearest home his the farmer remedy the present evil by wisdom head can have on earth, should be as secred Jewish cities.

tive protest is the best guide in this mat-

A woman's body is the temple of her soul and her soul's outward symbol. What we want to keep pure, holy and undefiled, we do not expose it to the common eyes of the world, pure and impure, to gloat upon.

The way in which men act, as a body, and express themselves, when brought face to face with this dress reform question, is inconsistent, unjust and ungenerous toward women, and unworthy of themselves as gentlemen; they think because a women is not their sister, or wife or sweetheart, that it is no concern of theirs how she demeans heraelf in this matter of dress. On the contrary they seem eager to push her into a false position by bypocritical compliments, and phrases of hollow admiration, which are as false and bitter as Dead Sea fruit. If she will but stop to analyze of good, sound, plump grain, he may expect the feelings from which they sprung, the motives which prompt them. Too much familiarity breeds contempt. No one knows this better than the man who watches over the dress and deportment of his wife or sister with the stern jealousy of an Oriental, while at the same time he blandly encourages the wives and daughters and sisters of other men Women do not know-the very young ones especially-that a certain dash and freedom on the part of men toward them. They too often follow blindly after the reigning mode, without questioning its meaning, or the effect They feel strong because they go in droves, and in droves they dare to indulge in a style of dress for which any woman would be hootalone, and on any occasion for which it is not sanctioned by fashion.

If men would but give up their abominable two sided policy on this question, and act toward every reputable woman whom they find masquerading in a disreputable attire. just as they would under like circumstancess toward their own wives, sisters or daughters, as far as is consistent with surroundings and circumstances, this mode of dress would soon be driven to its rightful home-the haunts of the profligate and lost woman. For my own dear country women I have them and seed down to grass. Full remu-neration for cost and labor is often received. I have spoken. Plain words and hard words to say, but words which must be spoken, nevertheless, and which are better spoken sooner the farm pay so promptly and generously as this. Last year we had a small piece of meadow, one and half acres, which had lain for many years worthless; it was full of has socks, roshes, wire grass, stumps and rocks—a miserable waste. We put three men into it, with a voke of heavy oxen, in September,

LABOE INDIANA FARM.

The Cincinnati Gazette has the following:
"What do you say to a corn field in Benton comety, Indiana, of 7,000 acres, in good condition and growing splendidly? It is to be found on the farm of Adam Earl, Esq., who resides in Latayette. Messrs Earl and Fowler have a farm of 20,000 acres in Benton county, in one body, well watered, and with permanent improvements, having 140 miles."

The frequent marriage of widows seems to have always been more or less discouraged, men being allowed in this respect much greater liberty; but St. Jerome mentions a widow who married her 22d husband, he in return having married 20 successive wives. The championship appears, however, to be long to a Haarlam woman spoken of hy remarrying had to be checked by law: "She had been married to her 25th husband, and being now a widow, was prohibited to marry in future." The frequent marriage of widows seems to
